Night Sky Calendar, Nov.–Dec. 2026

Supermoons, the Geminids, the Ursids and the winter solstice, with viewing tips

WHEN (EASTERN TIME)	WHAT TO LOOK FOR	DONE
Tue., Nov. 24, 9:53 a.m.	Beaver Moon, a supermoon; looks full the nights of Nov. 23 and 24	☐
Thu., Nov. 26	Thanksgiving; the Beaver Moon is still nearly full overhead	☐
Fri., Dec. 4–17	Geminids active; watch after about 9 p.m. local time	☐
Sun., Dec. 13–14	Geminids peak, about 120 to 150 per hour under a dark sky; Moon only 21% lit	☐
Mon., Dec. 21, 3:50 p.m.	Winter solstice; shortest day in the Northern Hemisphere	☐
Mon., Dec. 21–22	Ursids peak, about 10 per hour; bright Moon washes out most	☐
Wed., Dec. 23, 8:28 p.m.	Cold Moon, a supermoon and the closest full moon of 2026	☐

Viewing notes

Source: U.S. Naval Observatory (moon phases and seasons); American Meteor Society (meteor showers). Times are Eastern Time; clocks are on standard time after Nov. 1.